

Dennis W. Eaton, PhD
Ethiopia

October 23, 2022

To Whom It May Concern

Re: Letter of Recommendation for Americ Allison

Dear Sir/Madam:

From 2015, I taught at the Cuttington University and Americ Allison in three different classes over three semesters. This was from March 2015 to March 2016. I was his professor and I also recruited him to be a teaching assistant in the Statistics and Field Experimentation class in 2016.

Americ is a highly intellectual person and has very good ability above and beyond his classmates. He does excellent work on all his academic assignments. I was quite impressed by his writing ability and his close attention to quality work and timeliness in submitting work before the assigned date.

I was able to get to know him better after he became my teaching assistant. He showed himself able to take complex concepts and help students to understand. He undertook field research tasks and worked well to compensate when things were not working out according to the desired outcome. He was able to adjust when problems arose.

Americ is a quiet and contemplative leader. His colleagues respected his slow and thoughtful advice and decisions in academic matters. He was never quick to judge and make decisions without regard to careful thought.

As mentioned previously, Americ Allison became my teaching assistant and helped me much with a large class in Statistics. Other students would not agree to be a teaching assistant in such a class. Further, he was employed to co-manage the research and computer laboratories at the College of Agriculture and Sustainable Development. He showed himself to be very reliable and capable in these two activities. He would benefit highly from an opportunity to enhance his career.

Respectfully submitted,

Dennis W. Eaton, PhD
Agricultural TVET Consultant- dwe03601@gmail.com
IP Consult, Ethiopia